World Changers will be in Baton Rouge to restore and repair homes and to spread Christian love to homeowners and families of those less fortunate in our city. They will be here June 24th - 29th. Florida Boulevard Baptist Church requests your help in feeding the crews of 12 - 15 workers each day during the week they are here. A light lunch would include the following:

1. Sandwiches (bought or made at home), side items, such as chips, fruit, etc.
2. Kool-aid, Gatorade, or water. No sodas!
3. Dessert

This is the largest group of World Changers that Baton Rouge has ever hosted! Over 700 students and leaders will be working throughout our city; the mayor has been instrumental in securing homes to be renovated. Please pray for these students and our city as we work to put God's love in action. Call the FBBC Mission office at (225) 272-3740 to sign-up. Thank you!

Whose Kingdom Is It Anyway?

As Pastor Red Brick settled into the seat of the plane for the return home from the church growth conference, he began to reflect on the events of the conference and the information he had gained during the last three days. Just as he got settled in, he heard, "Hey, Red, mind if I sit by you for the trip home?" It was Pastor Sav'em All from Split and Divide Church from across town.

Pastor All had been at Split and Divide long enough to re-grow the church back to its size before the last splinter group left. His ability to present a good sermon and his readiness to tell anyone about God's good news was well known. As he got settled into his seat, Red could see that he was a little upset.

"You know, Red," he said, "this conference was one big disappointment. I flew out here to this mega church expecting them to give us the secrets they had used to winning so many people to Jesus and how to grow a big church."

"Well, Sav'em, this conference certainly was different from what we seem to get from the home state convention every year," Pastor Red said.

"Yeah, it was," Sav'em replied, "when the home state convention decides what the next program should be, all I have to do is wait for them to tell us what we need to do. When their envelope arrives, I simply open it up and follow the program. I don't have to think or study it. When I arrived for this conference, I was prepared to spend several hundred dollars on an evangelistic toolkit that I could take home and put to work in the church. Why, I am leaving here without so much as a new witnessing tract!"

"You know, Sav'em," Red replied, "I think you are right. You may have hit upon the thing I found so stimulating about this conference."

"Well, I didn't come to be stimulated," said Sav'em. And with that, Sav'em leaned back in his seat and said, "Wake me when we touch down."

As Sav'em dozed off, Pastor Brick began to contemplate what had made this conference unique. The content of this conference had been different from any church growth conference he had attended previously. This conference presented more than a toolkit or emphasis for the year. Not one conference leader had mentioned a multiyear campaign of some kind. No one had presented the latest program to purchase at the book store. Red concluded that this conference simply tried to get the participants to think through the essence of God's efforts to restore the broken relationship with the human race.

Over the years, Red had noticed that the home state convention leadership seemed to justify their existence to the local churches by rolling out a multiyear program or an annual emphasis. But this conference did not lay everything out for them to follow. This conference centered on a simple question, "What Is God's Kingdom?"

The theme of the conference was simple: "But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added to you" (Matt. 6:33 NASB).

The conference leaders had asked Pastor Red and the others to answer the question, "What is God's Kingdom?" by mentally picturing in their minds an example Jesus used to describe the Kingdom. After a few minutes, Pastor Red visualized the Kingdom of God as the vineyard in Matthew 20: 1-16. In his mind he saw the landscape of the Kingdom of God as the vineyard extending into the distance. The individual vines represented individual churches, yet the big picture was the vineyard - the Kingdom of God. For the first time in his ministry, Pastor Red had realized that the Kingdom of God was the all-encompassing panorama of God's vision for His Church, His Kingdom.

During his years at White Column Church, Pastor Red had concentrated on the fruits of souls saved through his local church. But now he realized that while it is one thing to picture in your mind the fruit of the individual vine, the local church, it is another to see the vineyard that could be produced by the seeds in the fruit.

Pastor Red now could see God's Kingdom as involving God's activity both within the church and beyond the walls of the church into the community. This definition of God's Kingdom led Pastor Red to contemplate the questions of "What does it mean to participate in God's Kingdom in relation to what God is doing in the world?" AND "What must be done in the local church to motivate the individual member to recognize and participate in what God is doing in the community surrounding the local church?"

As Pastor Sav'em snoozed during the flight home, Pastor Red made the following notes:

First of all, there is only one kingdom and it belongs to God. God is the sole owner of His kingdom and He works to build and extend only one kingdom; however, Satan is building many kingdoms. Pastor Red concluded that he was either participating in building God's Kingdom or he was allowing Satan to build one of his many kingdoms.

He wrote "God invites us to participate in building His Kingdom."

Second, God extends His kingdom to the ends of the earth through His church. As church members recognize and participate in what God is doing in the communities, neighborhoods, and people groups surrounding the local church, the transforming grace of God creates the visible presence of the Kingdom of God.

Pastor Red noted "God's desire is that every church be an authentic revelation of the presence and activity of His Kingdom."

Third, as God's people participate in what God is doing, they fulfill the command of Jesus in his great commission. God sent Jesus into the world; therefore, Jesus was the first "sent out one." The church extends God's Kingdom by responding to the motivation of the Holy Spirit as today's "sent out ones." The mission field of the community surrounding the local church needs to be defined in theological not geographical terms. The mission field exists just outside the church walls in the local community where faith and unbelief collide.

Red noted "God is the sending agent; the church, as the "sent out ones," must become active in the local community."

Fourth, all followers of Jesus are called to be sent out ones. Jesus modeled this with the twelve. Jesus prayed, "As you sent me into the world, I have sent them into the world" (John 17: 18, NIV). Later Jesus said, "Peace {be} with you; as the Father has sent Me, I also send you" (John 20:21 NASB).

Red wrote "Jesus is our example, our servant-leader. We must imitate Him."

As the plane touched down at the airport, Pastor Red underlined his concluding thoughts of the conference, What the Father sent Jesus to do in His physical body, Jesus sends the church to do as His spiritual body.

When the door opened for them to exit the airplane, Pastor Red put his notes away, elbowed Pastor Sav'em and said, "Wake up Sav'em. It's time to wake up, get out, and go to work!" © 2007 Rodrick E. Conerly.

Standing in the Gap

By Sherri Ingram, Prayer Coordinator

In New Testament days, walls were the main defense for a city. If a wall started to collapse, armed men would "stand in the gap" to prevent invasion until the wall was repaired. This is such an important prayer concept. When we intercede for others, we stand in the gap for them before God. We must grow in intercession, learning to bring our pastors, our country, our churches, our friends, and our lost to God's throne. As your prayer team, we are trying to establish a contact person in every BAGBR church to share ideas and lift one another up in prayer.

I am so excited that coming up next year, we will be hosting Henry and Richard Blackaby at First Baptist Church in Baton Rouge! We are forming committees and work groups, so if you can help, please email me at prwarrior@bellsouth.net.

Church Library News

By Sue Berthelot, Library Director

VBS will soon start across our area. I know many of you are busy helping teachers with resources for their classes. This is always such an exciting time in the life of the church. As you choose media to suggest to teachers, be sure to include books that relate to salvation. For younger children, include books that will introduce them to the concept of God.

If your church has children who arrive early for VBS, use this time in the library for "Story Time." Use books related to the Bible stories that children are studying during the week. The workers will appreciate your help and the children will have a great time!

It is not too late to plan a good summer reading program for the children. The theme could extend to what VBS is doing. It can be a simple challenge or more involved, depending on your time and available help.

Don't miss the four library sessions at Blitz on the Bayou! We will learn ways the church can support the Sunday school ministry.

BCM at LSU

By Steve Masters, Director

Our Building Renovation is now underway. We had a great groundbreaking ceremony. We are in need of local groups to help us with the project. Some men from Zoar, Istrouma, Foster Road and Dutchtown, and CrossPoint are coming to help throughout the week. Your church is invited to join any of these groups or to work at another time.

We had an outstanding Mexico Mission Trip. We had a participation of 181 students and adult van drivers. Our students worked very hard as they represented our Lord. For the 10th year in a row, our BCM group was the largest group to participate in an out of the country mission trip out of our nation's 60,000 churches and 800 BCMs.

We have 17 students that will serve as summer missionaries this summer and an additional 25 that will serve as church camp staffers at church camps across the country.

We recently helped sponsor an evangelistic outreach to our campus with other Christian groups and 27 students confessed Christ as Savior.

We have the names of over 1,000 freshmen who will be at LSU this fall and have already begun contacting them. We would like for each of them to receive a personal welcome either by email or phone from a local church member. If you would like to help us with this process, call or email me with the number of people you can contact.
